HIGHLIGHTS AND FEATURES

The Civil War and Reconstruction: 1860–1876

Ultimate and Proximate Causes May 1846–November 1860
In 1860, the people of the United States faced the greatest internal crisis that they had since their founding. That crisis burst into a disastrous civil war in 1861 that lasted four years.

Secession, Border States, and First Battles December 1860–December 1861
In the weeks between the election of Abraham Lincoln to the presidency in November and his inauguration on March 4, 1861, the crisis that had been impending for at least a decade culminated.

From Slavery to Freedom: Battlefield Emancipation and Contrabands May 1861–June 1862
The original seven states of the Confederacy that announced their secession and the formation of a new nation did so explicitly because of the election of Lincoln as a presidential candidate.

Blockade Ships and River Gunboats January 1861–December 1861
The naval and maritime side of the Civil War tends to hold a lesser place in public memory than the conflict between the armies on land. Part of the reason may lie in the fact that battles in...

Two Bitter Years January 1862–December 1863
Throughout 1862 and 1863, the Civil War increased in intensity, with numerous battles and heavy casualties that convinced both sides they were in for a long and bitter war. A number of factors...

Emancipation and the Mind of Lincoln July 1862–March 1865
Although abolitionists and radical Republicans continually urged Lincoln to take...

Land and Sea Battles

Battle of Shiloh
This painting by Thure de Thulstrup shows the Battle of Shiloh, an important Northern victory that secured western Tennessee and provided access to Mississippi in April 1862. Confederate troops launched a surprise attack on Union soldiers near Shiloh Church, forcing General William Tecumseh Sherman to withdraw his army. However, General Ulysses S. Grant and Don Carlos Buell soon arrived with reinforcements. The fighting continued for several days, until the Confederate army could no longer hold its line and General P. G. B. Beauregard ordered his troops to retreat into Mississippi. Each army suffered more than 10,000 casualties.
